Prom Is To Have New Act

Gym to See Night Club Show

Featuring a floor show and Johnny Holmes' Orchestra, the Junior Prom will get under way on Dec. 2 at 10 p.m. The floor show is the newest innovation to the Prom. "Arrangements have been made with agencies of the Montreal night clubs, to have one of the shows come up to the Currie Gym, sometime throughout the course of the dance. There will be a starry list of entertainers in Montreal that night, and we intend to secure the best. Johnny Holmes has promised that his band will play almost continuously, with fewer and shorter intermissions throughout the night, until 3 a.m.," the committee announced yesterday.

Soft drinks and ice for mixers will be available free of charge. The committee felt that, since refreshments will be sold at a concession, the gratis offer of soft drinks and ice would appeal to more of the revelers. Sandwiches, cakes, ice cream and coffee will be available at reasonable prices at a concession in the B.W.F. room of the Gym.

Tickets are being sold in the Union at $5.00 per couple. At first, they were only available to students in their Junior year, but now they are to be sold to students in all years. A quota of tickets will be sent to Dawson College and Macdonald College, for the convenience of students there. Chairman George Piper announced that not many tickets were now available, but it is hoped that there will be enough to satisfy all faculties, schools and colleges.

Tables will be arranged in a different style. Reservations for these can be made next Tuesday in the Union. The decorations committee say they have a unique theme, featuring palm trees, spotlighting, new location of the bandstand, to lend a tropical cabaret atmosphere to the Gym.

"Invitations have been sent out to prominent members of the Staff and Graduates' Society of the University. Many have already acknowledged their invitations and will be patrons of the Prom. A complete list of the patrons will be announced in the near future. Student guests at the Prom will include Colin McCallum, Students' Society President; Kayo Little, Women's Union President; Jack Crepeau, McGill Union President; and Clyde Kennedy, Editor-in-Chief of The McGill Daily," the committee said.

The Junior Prom will be a fully formal dance. Arrangements have been made with Martlet Studios to have photographers present for the benefit of those who will attend.

Dawson Pre-Meds to Show Movies Tonight

Tonight, at 8.45 there will be a general meeting of the Dawson Pre Med Society in Theatre 1. After the meeting two movies will be presented to the Dawson campus. One of these will deal with Penicillin, and the other with oxygen therapy. These movies will start at 7.15, and all Dawsons are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Dawson Engineers Sponsor Gen Night

Tonight, at 8.00, in Theatre 1, immediately following the movies sponsored by the Pre-Med Society of Dawson, there will be a fee Film Gen Night for all students, especially Engineers.

"Two of the films will be in colour, with the programme including such topics as mining operations, the petroleum industry, tunnel-building, the wonders of magnesium, and electrical transmission. This will be the first of the E.U.S. sponsored film nights. All are welcome to attend," a spokesman said.

Women Infiltrate UBC Campus Posts

Vancouver. — (CUP) — UBC's campus activities are in danger of being taken over by women. While women in the outside world continue to make learned speeches lamenting sexual inequality, UBC co-eds are steadfastly refusing to admit any inequality whatsoever.

Five members of student council—almost half of the total—are now women.

Two of the five hold positions never before held by women — President of the Literary and Scientific Executive and Sophomore Member.

Presidents of the Symphony Club and the Civil Liberties Union are also women and executive of the C.C.F. club is heavily weighted with women.

Talent Needed To Complete Revue's Cast

There is an urgent need for lyricists and composers, according to the casting committee of the Red and White Revue, although the script is complete.

"The leads have not yet been cast and there are still many openings for actors and dancers," said a member of the committee.

The management expects the Revue to be completely cast and ready to go into production by the first week of December. At that time stage crews and technicians will be needed.

Rusty Mendel, under the supervision of Althea Douglas, is in charge of the costuming.

Miss Mendel said that after the casting is completed, seamstresses will be needed to help in the making and remodeling of costumes.

"Anyone interested in applying for these positions should apply to the Revue Office, in the Union basement," said Bill Nichols, producer.

"Anyone interested in learning how to layout and prepare a program would be welcome. We also need three typists for the secretarial work involved in the production of the Revue," said a member of the management.

It has been announced that the next auditions will be held in the Union Ballroom on Thursday, Nov. 24, at 2 p.m. The committee states that those wishing to do secretarial work may either attend the auditions or turn their name in to George at the Tuck Shop.

Holmes Band to Play At Engineers' Dance

The Engineers' Annual Fall Informal Dance will take place this Friday evening, Nov. 25, in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym. It was announced last night by Bill Milholland, Social Chairman of the Engineering Undergraduate Society.

Music for this event will be provided by Johnny Holmes and his orchestra. The dance will be cabaret style.

Martha McCabe, in charge of decorations, said that they will depict the various stages in the life of an Engineer.

Tickets, which are priced at $1.50 per couple, are available from class representatives. "We hope that all Dawson Engineers will come to the dance," stated Bill Milholland. "We have been selling tickets out there, but if they have not already obtained them, they will have to do so the night of the dance at the door."

Nominations Now Open for President Engineers' Class '50

Nominations for the office of President of the Engineering Class of 1950 are now open.

Robert A. Keeler, Vice-President of the Engineering Undergraduate Society states that nominations for this position must be signed by at least ten members of the Graduating Class and by the nominee. All nominations are to be turned in to Fred Barton's office by 5:00 p.m., Nov. 30.

In a further statement Keeler outlining the duties of the President said, "these consist of serving on a committee to plan the activities for Convocation Week with the exception of the Convocation ceremonies proper. He is the liaison between Engineers and Graduate Society and his is the responsibility of calling class reunions, which, under the present plan, will be every five years."

OLD TIME PARSON and wife costumes displayed by Frank Lawlor and Heidi Early were judged best at last year's Hayseed Hop. The MOC is sponsoring the annual Hop scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 26, and square dancing will be featured, although modern dancing will also be part of the evening's entertainment. Costumes are a pre-requisite and prizes will be awarded for the most original couple. (Photo—Hall, Martlet).

Van Smith Lectures On Froth Flotation

"Great advances have been made during the past 20 years in the field of metallurgy," Van H. Smith said at a meeting of the Mining and Metallurgical Society in the Chemistry and Mining Building yesterday.

Mr. Smith, a graduate of the Mining University of Missouri and who has travelled to China, South Africa and Korea in connection with his work, is currently working for the mineral division of the American Cyanide Co.

Metallurgy, the art of recovering minerals from their ores, first became important during World War I, when scientists began to demand greater productivity from raw mineral ores. Three per cent oil was mixed with the ore, and the mixture was submitted to a rolling motion which formed balls of the mixture.

It was found that if the oil was decreased and the rolling increased a froth was produced, and this was the start of our modern froth flotation process, which brings the ore to a froth, from which 85 per cent of the mineral is then recovered.

This process at first brought all the minerals out together, but with the introduction of cresote and sulphur compounds into the mixture, the minerals could be separated. Cyanide was also made to produce this effect, and is used extensively for this today.

The ore is crushed, filtered, and put through a miniature flotation process. Another piece is polished and viewed under the microscope, while a third lump is put to the flame test to determine its elements.

All the ore proves satisfactory, mining is started and the desired mineral is then produced in vast quantities. A question period followed the movie.

D.V.A. Will any veterans who are now taking their course under D.N.D. instead of D.V.A. please report the fact to this office if they have not already done so.

E. CLIFFORD KNOWLES, University Chaplain & Student Councillor.

Election Procedure Is Set For S.E.C. Women's Union

Procedure to be followed by candidates for Students' Executive Council and Women's Union positions with regard to pen sketches, platforms, and pen sketches was announced by The Managing Board of The Daily last night.

These must be submitted to the office of Ralph Shackell, secretary-treasurer of the Students' Society, by noon Saturday, Nov. 26, it was announced. This deadline coincides with that set by the S.E.C. for nominations.

"In the case of candidates for S.E.C. positions, and for the vice-presidency of the Women's Union, pen sketches and platforms combined must not exceed 400 words. Although platforms of co-eds seeking election as members at large of the Women's Union executive may not be submitted by Women's Union decisions, pen sketches not exceeding 200 words may be submitted," it was announced.

Pictures of all candidates for these positions will be published provided glossy prints of suitable size are submitted, the announcement said.

Nominations for the Women's Union position must be signed by at least 25 members of that organization, according to election procedure. One of the two members at large must be from first year and the other from second.

The election is two weeks from today, Wednesday, Dec. 7.

Toronto. — (CUP) — Alec Kuchkuda, right outside for the University of Toronto Senior Soccer Blues, was stopped at the United States border Nov. 9, when the team was on its way to a recent game in Buffalo, N.Y. It was disclosed by The Varsity, Toronto student newspaper, Monday.

American immigration officials refused him entry to the United States when he said that he was not a Canadian. He answered that he was Polish.

This left the team with only 12 players, allowing coach Brian Barton only one substitute throughout the game. While the Blues went on to win the game, 3-1, Kuchkuda stayed behind in Niagara Falls.

Kuchkuda came to Canada under the Displaced Persons act three years ago and entered the University of Toronto this fall.

Buffalo State Teacher's College officials were reported to be amazed and chagrined at the news of the Varsity player.

POISONALITIES: The latest move in the S.E.C.'s "austerity" program to conserve students' funds was a motion carried at the S.E.C.'s last meeting "that the S.E.C. provide three special excursion railway tickets for members of the Council to attend the McGill-Western Rugby Football Game." The shocker: the motion was brought up by the chairman of the finance committee Harold Corrigan . . .

meanwhile, such a small but important group as the Chess Club says it is threatened with extinction because it has received no funds from the S.E.C. and almost all campus clubs are operating on cut budgets.

COFFETTERIA: Truth in advertising . . . the Grillroom has a sign reading "Peanut Butter Sand 15c" . . . We hear the retail price of coffee's going up . . . trying no doubt to catch up with the Grillroom brand . . . The Union cough-cough is not only made, says Marty the Martlet, on the McGill grounds but of the McGill grounds . . . Overheard: "She used to be the cream in my coffee but now she's just grounds for divorce."

THE GREATEST OF THESE: The same McGill students who this fall raucously sang "It's not for knowledge that we go to college" at football games and pep rallies have recently proved just that . . . Coming after the unsuccessful Blood Bank episode, the Charities Campaign is going over like the proverbial lead balloon . . . Apparently nothing short of medieval torture will extort even a dime from each student for the Charities Campaign . . . The return of the Blood Clinic, to try again, before the end of this month is McGill's only chance to save face . . . well?

SPRING AND FALL QUOTES: It seems that Someone has put the finger on those who would linger, so all is quiet on the R.V.C. front . . . Pronounced Queen Victoria on the scorch-porch out-look: "Necks to nothing has been done about this situation for years. We are not amused" . . . The wife of a certain McGill head-football-coach after the Westwin game tackled reporters: "Well at least next year's win won't seem anti-climatic."

THE FOURTH ESTATEMENTS: We note with interest an interesting note in the Canadian Tribune (the most widely-read paper in Canada) that a gala little soiree was thrown recently in Moscow at the Stalin Motor Works Palace of Culture . . . From the Trans-Varsities: "Just before the game started some of the fans in the south end stood up for a piece being played by the McGill band which they thought sounded more like the 'Kluge' than James McGill" . . . There was an old lady of Tring . . . who, when anyone asked her to sing . . . would reply "Aren't it odd? . . . I can never tell 'God . . . Save McGill' from old 'James the King'."

B.O.K.'S AND BRICKBATS: A bob to Bob Perry, former Daily type and now a very foreign correspondent in Sherbrooke for his new column "Profiles" in the Daily Record there . . . A gold-plated amoeba to the Brown University biologist who recently discovered a third sex . . . Breathes there a man with hide so tough who says two sexes ain't enough? . . . ever notice the striking similarity between the tune of "M Stands for Old McGill" and "Fight on, Brave Army Team?" This, Gentlemen, Is History.

Essay Contest Is Announced By Province

Any Canadian, who has resided in the Province of Quebec for three years, is eligible to enter the 1950 Provincial Literary and Scientific Contest it was announced yesterday.

This contest opens March 1 and closes May 1, 1950 and three prizes are being offered for the best essays entered. The prizes are to be in cash — $800 for the first, $400 for the second, and $200 for the third best entries.

The competition is open to receive entries in either French or English, and the subject matter is to be divided into three classes.

(1) Works of fiction in prose, in the French language, such as novels, tales, news, sketches, romantic biographies, theatrical plays or collections of theatrical plays;

(2) Works in the French language of mathematical or physical sciences, such as mathematics, physics, chemistry, astronomy, etc.;

(3) All works, in the English language, which belong to the various disciplines of the section of moral and political science.

Six copies of all entries, either typed or printed, must be sent to the Secretary of the Competition at the Provincial Secretary's Office in Quebec between March 1 and May 1, 1950, it was announced.

Any further information may be obtained in the Registrar's Office.

S.C.M. Hears Murray Chipman On Socialism, Free Enterprise

By SHIELA McDONOUGH

"Christian Ethics in a Competitive Society" was the subject dealt with by Murray Chipman, Montreal Director of the MacLean-Hunter Publishing Co., in an address at the S.C.M. house yesterday.

Mr. Chipman, who has had wide business experience and has travelled extensively in Eastern and Western Europe, discussed the three major ideologies competing for the minds of men — communism in Russia; socialism in England; and the free or competitive society on the American continent.

He contrasted the personal, economic, and political freedoms of the free enterprise system with "the ruthless oppression of communism and the deadening effect on the individual of the socialist state."

He said free enterprise countries have built up a level of material prosperity unsurpassed by any other system.

He asserted that high, humani-

500 Students Give Motion Full Support

Dawson College students last night shouted their unanimous approval of a resolution that would stop any further payment on the debt for which the McGill Students' Executive Council holds them responsible as more than 500 students, 90 per cent of the student body, packed Theatre 1 for an unofficial Dawson Students' Society meeting.

Presented by Buster Loudon, Eng 2, the resolution will be brought before the McGill S.E.C. by Dawson representatives Robert M. Taylor, president of the Dawson Students' Society, and Cy Rosen, president of the Dawson Arts and Science Undergraduate Society, tonight as indicative of the feeling of the Dawson student body.

Throughout the two-hour meeting, chaired by Taylor, discussion from the floor was heated, reflecting intense interest on the part of Dawson students in their financial problems.

"Dependant upon what McGill does tomorrow night," Taylor told The Daily last night "there will be an official Students' Society meeting at which any necessary action will be taken."

The full text of the resolution follows:

Whereas we, the students of Dawson College who are members in good standing of the Dawson College Students' Society for the year 1949-50, have been informed;

(a) That the McGill S.E.C. is holding us responsible for the balance of a debt which it claims it incurred on behalf of the Dawson College Students' Society of 1947-48;

(b) That the Dawson College Students' Society has been making repayments to the McGill S.E.C. since the time this alleged debt was discovered;

Whereas we, the members of the 1949-50 Dawson College Students' Society, have not received from our self-appointed accreditors, namely the McGill S.E.C., a detailed and officially audited accounting of this alleged debt;

Whereas the McGill S.E.C., though it blames the members of the 1947-48 Dawson College Students' Society for incurring the said debt, has made no attempt to collect payment toward this debt from those members when they transferred to McGill University in spite of the fact that they received most of the benefits of the expenditures made that year and in spite of the fact that they have received additional benefit from the repayment made by subsequent Dawson College students;

Whereas repayment already made to the McGill S.E.C. by members of the Dawson College Students' Society now totals more than the value of the tangible assets which were purchased and used by the 1947-48 Dawson College Students' Society and then passed on to the subsequent Dawson College Students' Society;

Whereas the vast majority of members of the 1949-50 Dawson College Students' Society were not even at Dawson when the debt was allegedly incurred;

Whereas the McGill S.E.C. guided the organization of the Dawson College Students' Society and assumed certain financial control;

Whereas there are records to show that the McGill S.E.C. exercised its control over the finances of the 1947-48 Dawson College Students' Society to the extent of authorizing and making payment on behalf of the Dawson College Students' Society which totals more than $68,000 in a period of eight months;

Whereas the payment authorized and made by the McGill S.E.C. on behalf of the 1947-48 Dawson College Students' Society far exceeded the budget and thereby allowed a debt to be incurred which could otherwise have been prevented;

Whereas repayment of the balance of this debt by the present Dawson College Students' Society would exhaust available funds and force cessation of all student activities;

Be it resolved that:

We the members of the 1949-50 Dawson College Student Society refuse to make any further payment on this debt to the McGill S.E.C.

THE DAWSON DEBT

The financial situation at Dawson College came to a head shortly before deadline last night with the approval of a resolution to stop all payment of the now famous "Dawson debt" to the McGill Students Executive Council. A clear indication of how the present Dawson student body feels about the debt incurred during the year 1947-1948 is given by the fact that ninety percent of the students attended the meeting to give unanimous approval to the resolution.

The Dawson financial situation has been clouded for some time in spite of a meeting a few weeks ago between delegates of both the Dawson and the McGill Councils.

Speaking on behalf of the Dawson delegation after that meeting, George Stephen, retiring president of the Dawson S. E. C. told The Daily that "a clear understanding was reached with the McGill committee" and that there would be "sufficient funds available to permit the carrying on of activities as in the past, but caution must be exercised more than ever before."

First indication that the Dawson financial situation had changed considerably since then came Friday with the announcement by Dawson S. E. C. president Robert Taylor that all expenditures had been frozen "until further notice." He declared that the McGill S. E. C. finance committee had found it necessary "to deduct two dollars per student from universal fees, and also to appropriate the profits realized by the Dawson Canteen and Snack Bar." The Dawson S. E. C., he said, had been "unable to find a satisfactory solution to the financial problem."

The meeting tonight, therefore, between representatives of the Dawson and the McGill S. E. C. should clear up many misunderstandings which have been smouldering in the past few days.

Certainly the Dawson students present some powerful arguments on their side of the case. It would be an intolerable situation to have more than six hundred students at that comparatively isolated branch of McGill without adequate funds for extra-curricular activities. And above all, it would be most undesirable to have so stringent a cut in activities for the people who did not incur the debt.

The charge that "the payment authorized and made by the McGill S. E. C. on behalf of the 1947-48 Dawson Students' Society far exceeded the budget and thereby allowed a debt to be incurred which could otherwise have been prevented" places more than a little of the responsibility for the debt on the McGill S. E. C. if the charge is correct.

On the other hand, it should be remembered that the present McGill S. E. C. was not in office during the time the Dawson debt was incurred. The McGill S. E. C., we are sure, would be as happy as anyone to reach a satisfactory solution to the whole situation. The present McGill S. E. C. is faced with the frustrating problem of giving everyone a fair share of a limited amount of money.

It is obviously a time for cool, considered action and we feel confident that the meeting between Dawson and McGill tonight will result in an amicable solution to this difficult problem.

THE CHARITIES DRIVE

At the present time there are two charity campaigns on the McGill campus. One is the McGill Combined Charities drive and the other is the United Jewish Student Appeal, the former with an objective of $5000 and the latter, $3050. It is openly announced and understood that two dollars is needed from each student for Combined Charities and more than that again from each Jewish student for the United Jewish Appeal.

Various methods are being employed to realize this money — dances, a fashion show, a cocktail party, a tag day, an aquatic show, together with direct canvassing. In organizing and presenting these special events, a great deal of trouble and expense is involved. Some business concerns have been called on to help; Eaton's is contributing merchandise for the Carnival at R. V. C. this Saturday, and Morgan's has provided a fashion show. Again, there is the time and energy consumed by those on the campaign committee and the students participating in the shows. If the Combined Charities drive is not a success, all this time, effort, and expense has gone to waste.

Now all this is designed to get the McGill student to contribute to charity. If such charity was simply a matter of dimes and quarters as mentioned in yesterday's Daily editorial, or the price of a dance, it could easily be taken out of Mr. Student's allowance. But we are being asked for dollars, and few students get enough spending money to contribute this kind of money in such a short space of time.

It all boils down to this — Mother and Father supply the donation that is given to the canvasser who calls upon their sons and daughters. It is the parents, doubtlessly having already been asked to donate to this particular charity, who are again asked to foot the bill of their children's generosity. I think that this is unreasonable, foolish, and most objectionable. It should be left to Father and Mother to "Give with Understanding" from the money that they have earned by the sweat of their own brows — they are in an infinitely better position to "understand" than their sons and daughters who have never had to earn their own living.

In conclusion, I think that it has not been because of "apathy" on the part of the McGill student body that the Combined Charities drive has lagged; it is rather that they will not donate money not their own to a cause which cannot reasonably expect such help.

REVEALS PRICES IGNORED

A recent statement by the Macmillan Company of Canada that its policy is to sell books for resale at its established list price is not fully supported by an investigation made by The Varsity, student newspaper at the University of Toronto, of book stores selling to students of 15 Canadian universities.

Require List Prices

On Nov. 3 a letter from Managing Director John Gray of the Macmillan Company of Canada was printed in The Varsity. In it he said, "It is the policy of this House to sell books for resale at its established list prices. And any customer who will not respect those list prices compels us either to assist him to a favourable competitive position, or to suspend supply in fairness to those who do."

Information received from editors of 15 Canadian Universities newspapers shows Macmillan books are sold to students with cash discounts at three universities, and the students of one other university in effect save ten per cent on Macmillan books by means of credit slips they receive when buying texts.

Reports from two other universities indicated some discount policy but did not describe very clearly the exact nature of the discounts on Macmillan texts.

Get 15 Per Cent Off

At the University of Montreal discounts of from 12 to 15 per cent are received by students. Students of Laval University receive discounts which "average ten per cent."

Carleton College students receive about a five per cent discount.

A system of "Credit notes" is used by the co-operative book store on the Queen's campus. A student receives a credit note valued at ten per cent of his purchased text book. Fred Cederberg, news editor of The Queen's Journal, describes the system thus: "Buy a text list price five dollars. Pay five. Receive credit not for 50 cents. This note can be used to buy anything in store."

Reports from St. Francis Xavier University and Dalhousie University indicate that there may be discounts on Macmillan texts. Nine other universities reported no discounts.

The Daily Meets

Professor Calogero

by Goldie Kaplansky

The plane from London, England are in greater demand than ever circled the field at Dorval and slowly glided to the earth. Among the passengers was Professor Guido Calogero, of the University of Pisa, Italy. His arrival as Visiting professor of Philosophy at McGill is part of a programme carried out by the Lady Davis Foundation, to promote international relationships between scholars all over the world.

Professor Calogero arrived here last January and has been a member of the Philosophy staff since the beginning of last semester's second term. He will remain at McGill for two more years.

The Visiting professor's English is remarkably fluent now, but it was no easy task for him to adapt his "book" English to the living longue used in teaching Philosophy to Canadian students.

"I was surprised and pleased at the closer relationship between student and professor at McGill," said Professor Calogero. "In Italy, we have only lectures and the professors cannot discuss things with students as informally as it is possible to do in conferences."

AUTHOR

The Professor is an authority on Greek philosophy and has written several books on that subject. They are the "Logic of Aristotle," and "Eleatic Philosophy." His essay, "Upon the so-called Identity of Philosophy and History," is included in a volume entitled "Philosophical and Historical Essays," presented to Ernest Cassirer, and published by the Oxford University Press (1938). His "Exposition on Philosophic Theory" is written in three volumes: Logic, Ethics, and Aesthetics.

Professor Calogero was impressed by the comparatively high standard of living in Canada. Italy is recuperating from the ravages of two world wars, and her economic situation is very poor.

Overpopulation has become a nationwide problem. Over 48 million inhabitants are crowded into 300 thousand square kilometres, and the population is increasing on the average of half a million a year. There are about two million unemployed.

"Employees with college degrees are in greater demand than ever before," said the professor. "and the Universities are overcrowded. There are 40,000 students in the University of Rome alone."

University fees in Italy are incredibly low. The average fee for an Italian student is 10,000 "lire," or about $15 in Canadian money. One dollar equals about 600 "lire."

Low tuition has become a tradition among the Italian people, and with but a few exceptions, the 22 Universities of Italy are state-owned.

SCHOOL SYSTEMS
Upon entering the University in Italy," said Professor Calogero, "students are on the whole more prepared for their University career than they are in Canada."

The school system consists of four years elementary school, 5 years "gimnasio" and three years "liceo." The latter corresponds to the French "lycee," and is equivalent to two years in a Canadian College. On completing the four years at an Italian University, the degree presented to the graduates ("Dottore in Lettere," or "Dottore in Filosofia") corresponds to a little less than the Canadian Ph.D.

In spite of the overcrowded state of the Universities, however, about 20 per cent of the population of Italy as a whole are illiterate. Northern and Southern Italy were united in 1861, and the diverse peoples comprising her different sections have presented no small problem to the Italian Government. Whereas the percentage of illiteracy in Northern Italy, with its great industrial centres, is practically negligible, the illiterate people in certain parts of Southern Italy represent about 50 per cent of the population; progress has been retarded considerably in Southern Italy by the inadequate rule of the Bourbons in the 19th century.

The Visiting Professor came to Canada alone last January, but he returned to Italy in the summer-time to bring his family back with him. Mrs. Calogero was the director of a school of social work in Rome, and at present she is very interested in Canadian social work. The professor's 10-year-old daughter is a part-time student in English at McGill, and his son, 14, is studying at the Town of Mount Royal High School.

Professor Calogero believes that the international exchange of professors is a very good idea.

"It would be nice if we had a more extensive exchange in University students as well," he added. By an arrangement between McGill and the Italian Government, McGill will soon have another Visiting Professor. He is the Italian Literature professor—D'Andrea.

Thus, in these times of tension and international friction, perhaps professors and students from different parts of the world will be able to establish good will between their countries in a far more profound way than the pacts and treaties of the U.N.A.

Opera Broadcast

All three operas from the production of the Minute Opera Co., will be broadcast in their entirety, and with their original casts, on Thursday, November 24 over station CFCF-FM, commencing at 7:30 A.M.

The entire evening's broadcast time will be taken up by the company. In addition to comments on, and explanations of the operas, the performances will be interspersed with discussions by prominent local musical figures.

Given in the same order of their performance, which demanded three extra nights at the Compagnons' Theatre earlier this month, the works to be heard are: Mozart's "Bastien and Bastienne," "Le Comte de Monteverdi," and "The Secret of Susan," by Wolf-Ferrari.

Produced by Jack Howlett, conducted and co-ordinated by Franck Coleman, the singers to be heard on the program will be: Jose Forques, Jean-Paul Jeannotte, Voland Guerard, Michele Bonhomme, Andre Rousseau, Giselle Phaneuf and Fernand Martel, assisted by Pianists Jeanne Landry and Rolande Lefebvre.

Features Staff Meeting

There will be a very important meeting of all members of the Features Staff on Wednesday, November 23 at one o'clock. Organization, promotion plans for the future, and general policy will be discussed. The meeting will be held in the Boardroom. All Features Staff and the Managing Board will be present.

PEPSI-COLA

Mrs. M. E. Jones, Montreal housewife, says, "I changed to Pepsi-Cola because it's a favorite with family and friends alike." And it is! Sparkling Pepsi-Cola is first choice for refreshment with millions of Canadians. Take home a 6-bottle carton today. You get 12 full glasses for only 30¢. Compare the taste. Compare the value. You'll never again be satisfied with any other soft drink.

"My friends and I changed to Pepsi-Cola because Pepsi gives us better flavour and bigger value," says Leo Barrette, Ottawa student. And that's true of the new quick-drink size Pepsi, too. You get 8 full ounces of sparkling Pepsi-Cola for only 5¢. Once again, you get more for your money when you buy Pepsi!

Senior Cagers Play Guards Tonight in First MBL Contest

By FRANK SHAMY

McGill's senior basketball squad will resume their hunt for city basketball honors tonight at 8.00 p.m. in Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium where they tackle the Grenadier Guards in the season's opening Montreal Basketball League contest.

The Redmen did not compete in this league last year, although they did participate in 1947. Other new clubs in the loop are the Windsor and Verdun Colonials, both of whom have shown up well in the pre-season Golden Ball Tournament.

Coach Moe Abramowitz wouldn't make any predictions about the outcome of the opening tilt since it will be the team's first really stiff competition, but he is sure that the Guards will know they have been through a game before it's all over. Although the team lacks experience at the moment, it is expected that participation in the local league will give them the necessary training needed before the intercollegiate opened on December 21.

Moe said last night, "I don't expect any miracles, though we should give them a good fight tomorrow night. We'll be ready by mid-December."

YOUNGEST PLAYER

The youngest player ever to play in the Montreal Basketball League will be in action tonight for the Redmen. Sheldon Merling, still only sixteen years of age, will make his debut in the M.B.L. although he is definitely no newcomer to basketball circles. He was a member of last year's juvenile Y.M.H.A. team and also starred for Strathcona Academy in the S. "A" High School League. Among other players who have played for juvenile and junior Blue teams in the past, and who will be in McGill uniforms tonight, are Myer Bloom, Lou Endman, and Asher Garbuz. Garbuz is a newcomer to the squad although both Bloom and Endman were on the team last year. Other players Moe will dress tonight are Cunningham, Edwards, Finlayson, Fraser, Milburn, and Shea.

It was announced last night by Ernie Pappas, manager of the senior squad, that Peter Petch has been appointed assistant manager for the '49-'50 season.

Football Stars Lift Redmen's Hockey Hopes

There was a noticeable cheerful expression on Coach Dave Campbell's handsome countenance yesterday. With the first Senior Hockey game coming up this Friday and a shortage of good hockey material making itself felt, the coach was more than worried about this year's edition of the Redmen. However, this was remedied at yesterday's practice when six senior footballers turned out, and the word is that three or four of these will be on the Senior team.

The coach now has eighteen men on the squad and will probably make the final two cuts at Thursday's practice. In goal, the coach can pick and choose from Bob MacLellan, Tony Dobell, or Fred Gagnon. MacLellan, center on Vic Obeck's Redmen, is in very good shape, but as yet seems unsteady on his skates. Tony, who played on last year's team after Gelineau went to Boston and Fred Gagnon who hails from Catholic High, where he starred on their team last year, are working out very well, showing lots of savy and experience.

As it stands now, Campbell has six capable players for defense duties. These include Sandy Sanderson and Jack Hennessy, who played on last year's squad. Footballer Moe Malone, Rube Zemel, Dawson's mainstay on defense for the past two years, Renolds and Errington, complete the picture.

Three lines have been formed and seem to be flying. Marshall and the two Robillards, Gene and Rocky form one, Murphy, O'Neill and Andrew the second, while Taylor, Lafontaine and Kelly are the third unit.

While the Seniors are prepping, Cy Beigler coach of the Intermediate Braves is trying to arrange for practices as soon as possible and will likely have something definite to announce at the end of this week.

McGill Skiers Invited To Aspen Championship

By BOB GRAHAM

An honour of no small degree was recently bestowed on the McGill ski squad when they were named among the sixteen teams to compete in the third annual Intercollegiate Four Event Ski Meet at Aspen Colorado December 22 and 23.

These sixteen teams include the pick of the American and Canadian squads ranging from the Appalachian Highland and Laurentians west to the Rockies. They were chosen by the Aspen Ski Club to race in this classic out of the several hundred teams that are now competing in the sport on the Intercollegiate level.

The downhill and slalom courses are the ones to be used in the 1950 World Ski Championships and are complete except for snow. They were designed by Dick Durrance, world famous skier, and not only meet the stringent racing requirements of the FIS World Championships but also provide maximum advantage points for the spectators.

Each University approached was asked to send four competitors and a coach or manager to the meet, which would be an excellent conditioner for the Intercollegiate Ski Union Championships at Middlebury, New Hampshire on the 25th, 26th and 27th of February.

... BUT NO $$$...
The one "fly in the ointment" that remains to bar the Redmen from participating is the ever present lack of funds. The dollar sign has spelled the doom of many great sporting events at this institution and chances are that there will be no exception in regard to the "Aspen Meet."

SKIERS REQUIRED
Manager Bill Tindale is still receiving applicants for the McGill teams. In addition to the regular Senior and Intermediate squads will be a third team which will enable all enthusiasts, regardless of their stage of skiing ability, to receive some excellent coaching under Vic Allen.

Any person interested should contact the manager or the coach as soon as possible. The training camp, situated in the Mount Tremblant area will go into operation as soon as the hills and trails become skiable.

Meirowitz Trophy Winner Gets Touchdown Club Cup for Best Lineman on Squad

By FRED GOTTHEIL

Nearly a thousand fans crowded into the Montreal High Auditorium last night to witness the last of the Touchdown meetings for this semester.

Coach Vic Obeck was in charge of the affair and opened it up with the movies of last Saturday's fatal McGill-Western game.

As the game progressed, Vic commented on each play stressing its good and bad points. Notable applause were given to several players especially to little Pete Robinson who did a swell job of running, picking up valuable yardage for the Obeckmen. Rookie Haskell Blauer also drew attention with his fine display of plunging through the Mustang wall. Good running and kicking by Captain Rocky Robillard caught the eye of the crowd as did Western's ace half-back Bob McFarlane who played a remarkable game.

Oh's and groans filled the hall when the film showed the Irving Hackett play in which the pigskin just tipped the fingers of Dave Hackett who was behind the Western line. "It was a tough break," said Coach Vic Obeck, "but that's football." Another heartbreaker was when Pete Robinson, in the last quarter, made an end run but fell a half yard short of a first down on the Western 2 yard line. Obeck felt pretty sure that Robinson had made it but stated, "The officials probably saw the play better than I did."

After the movies were shown coach Obeck summed it up by saying, "We have no alibis, we were beaten by a club who took the breaks." The all-star intercollegiate coach went on saying, "We didn't figure to get that close, but when you do... well, it's tough."

The evening came to a climax when Vic Obeck announced that Marvin Meirowitz, McGill's starry left tackle, was awarded the Touchdown Club Trophy which is given to the best lineman on the Redmen squad. The choice was made by the McGill football players, who as Vic stated, should know better than anyone else. The hall rang with ovations as big Marv went up to receive his trophy. Obeck stated that in his opinion Marv was the best lineman in the league, a good sport and a great guy.

When Marv, the hero of the night, was asked for a statement, he shyly stuttered and stammered before he could find the words to express his sincere appreciation. "I'm greatly overjoyed and really proud to receive this trophy and wish to thank the fellows who were a swell gang to work with."

NOTICE TO ALL MANAGERS
Team managers are responsible for notifying team members of time and place of each contest or game. Defaulted games are expensive to faculties concerned as each defaulted game carries a penalty of 30 points. Any team defaulting twice in any league is automatically dropped from the schedule.

Therefore it is wise for all Intramural teams to appoint good managers to handle their Intramural teams. Good managers are essential to the success of the various Intramural leagues.

TRACK & HARRIER

Will all members of the Senior track and harrier teams please report to the Sir Arthur Currie Gym Thursday at 5 p.m. for team pictures. As this will be the official team picture for the McGill Annual it is most important that everyone be present. The 1950 track & harrier captains will be elected at that time.

ALL STAR SELECTIONS

The Canadian Press yesterday announced its selections for the All Star team of the Senior Intercollegiate League.

Western, champions of the loop, by virtue of their victory over the Redmen last Saturday at Varsity Stadium, places six men on the squad. The Redmen notched four spots on the dream team, Varsity three and the Queen's Gaels two.

On the first team were: George Valois at flying wing; Jack Parry at half; Bruce Cummings at half; Bob McFarlane secondary half; George Arnott at quarter; Elmer Quinlyn at one inside spot while Moe Malone, Wally Kowal, Don Longmore, Pete Salari tied for the other. Middles, Fraser Mustard and Reg Ort, while ends were, Jim Mitchener and Tip Logan.

Well, we now have a common room. About time, too. Room 91, which is located at the top of the building, next to the old EUS book-room, and also next to the sky. It was officially opened today by Claude Howard and crew. That was a job well done, Bill Lambert. Bill is in charge of the house and is searching for furniture for the room. If you or any of your friends have anything to donate that can be used in the common room, would you, or they, please get in touch with Bill, who is usually found in the 4th year drafting room (civil) 75.

It seems that since neither of us is named McPherson, we can't get on the front page.

Brings back a story. When I was out west I had a gold mine. Had a saddle made out of gold. Every time I rode me horse, I struck it rich. D's was censored. Thanks — L. A.

The door prize offered at the common room opening was won by George Goring, Elect. V. George may now drink boiler-makers instead of straight beer.

Nominations are called for the president of the graduating class. These nominations have to be signed by 10 members of the class and handed in to Fred Barton.

Being free with our advice, we would like to point out that it is a devil of a job. The president has the responsibility of organizing the class banquet and getting a keynote speaker. During the years A.M.

Guatemalan Missionary Tells of Experiences

"My Experiences as a Missionary" was the topic of an address delivered yesterday by Rev. William Vaughters, who has just returned from spending four years in Guatemala. Rev. Mr. Vaughters spoke at a Missionary meeting of the McGill Christian Fellowship held at Student House last night. Rev. Mr. Vaughters showed 100 color slides of various aspects of native life in Guatemala, including what are believed to be the only pictures in existence of the now almost extinct tribe of Lacandon Indians. This tribe now totals 500 persons. The slides included pictures of the churches, built by the missionaries, and Indians in their native garb. There were scenes of the minister's headquarters town of Livingston, which can only be reached by boat, and also pictures of trails through the treacherous jungles of the country.
